RESOLUTION

BIG Endorses Restoration of D.C. Pension Tax Benefit for 40,000 Retired Federal Workers, D.C. Government Employees, Teachers, Police, Firefighters and Veterans

WHEREAS, the National Organization of Blacks In Government (BIG), was incorporated in 1976, as a 501©3 non-profit organization to, educate and advocate on behalf of federal, state and municipal government employees and today, BIG seeks to represent 2.5 million public and private civil servants by continuing to address discrimination in the workplace and its effect on public service; and

WHEREAS, for 57 years retired federal and local government employees living in Washington, DC received a modest tax benefit allowing them to subtract $3,000 from income when they calculated their local District of Columbia taxes.

WHEREAS, this provision -- known as the "pension benefit exclusion" -- was granted by Congress in recognition of civil servants' public service and the relatively low salaries they receive compared to the private sector.

WHEREAS, the pension benefit exclusion covered approximately 40,000 retired federal workers, D.C. government employees, D.C. firefighters and police officers, D.C. teachers and military service veterans.

WHEREAS, the D.C. City Council repealed the pension benefit exclusion, effective in 2015, as part of a complex tax bill without giving affected seniors notice of the repeal.

WHEREAS, seniors were painfully surprised to discover the loss of this benefit when they filed their tax returns this year.

WHEREAS, concerned citizens have petitioned Mayor Bowser and the D.C. Council to restore the pension benefit exclusion, but their pleas have fallen on deaf ears.

WHEREAS, the pension annuity exclusion remained intact even during the District of Columbia’s fiscal nadir in the 1990s, when the city's finances were in shambles. Yet the exclusion was repealed during the District’s recent burst of prosperity, when its population and tax base are rising.
WHEREAS, the repeal of this modest benefit is an affront to seniors who are long-time residents of the city. The repeal underscores the perception that as Washington, DC becomes increasingly gentrified, seniors who stuck with the city in its hard times no longer are welcome. While District officials profess to want to preserve the District's economic diversity, repealing the pension benefit exclusion does the opposite.

WHEREAS, other jurisdictions maintain far more generous annuity exclusions. Maryland increased its exclusion (not limited to public employees) from $27,000 to $29,000 for 2015. Virginia has an age-based exclusion of $12,000 beginning at age 65 for singles making less than $50,000 and less than $75,000 for married couples.

WHEREAS, a citizen’s coalition has formed to fight to bring back the pension benefit exclusion, including the Penn-Branch Citizens/Civic Association; D.C. Federation of Citizens Associations; Baptist Ministers Conference of DC and Vicinity; VFW, DC Chapter; National Association of Retired Federal Employees, DC Chapter; Mary A. Collins, Washington Teachers Union Retiree Chapter; Margaret Hicks, PhD, CPA; Del Robinson, MBA, CPA; and Isaac McRae, MST, EA president, I. McRae, Inc. Support Document > https://cl.ly/2U1m0n2V3h0e

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED:

In furtherance of its advocacy mission, BIG endorses and supports restoration of the pension benefit exclusion. Support Document > https://cl.ly/2q0O90Y3V1m

And within 120 days, the National President of Blacks In Government will write letters to the Honorable Muriel Bowser, Mayor of the District of Columbia; the Honorable Phil Mendelson, Chair, D.C. City Council; and the Honorable Eleanor Norton Holmes – Congressional Delegate for the District of Columbia urging immediate restoration of the pension benefit exclusion and is willing to testify in support of the provisions and the need to enact them into law.
